All about ground beef

By SHIRLEY W. WALTON

Different Ground Beef Labels Still Mean Hamburger

Ground beef is a common meat product in our supermarkets and understanding the many different labels doesn't have to be a difficult consumer problem. Ground beef may be labeled differently, depending upon the supermarket.

Regular, lean and extra lean refers to the fat content in the ground beef. Ground chuck, ground round and ground sirloin refer to the cuts of meat that have been ground.

The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) has standards for these names but these standards apply only when the meat is ground and packaged in federally inspected or state inspected plants. Supermarkets which grind or package beef themselves sometimes label ground beef packages according to their own preferences.

Ground beef or hamburger may be from graded or ungraded meat, but because of the grinding process grade has little influence on the final product. USDA recommends buying ground beef by price rather than by quality grade.

Fat content in most stores is labeled regular if no more than 30 percent fat, lean if about 23 percent fat, and extra lean if about 15 percent fat. USDA sets a limit of 30 percent fat by weight for products ground in federally or state inspected plants. 30 percent is equivalent to regular ground beef in most supermarkets.

However, most ground beef is ground in local supermarkets to maintain freshness and is not subject to the federal fat content regulations.

How should you handle ground beef at home? Ground beef should be refrigerated or frozen immediately after purchase. If it will be used within a day or two, it can be stored in the coldest part of the refrigerator or the meat keeper. For freezer storage, wrap tightly in moisture resistant material like aluminum foil, freezer paper or a plastic freezer bag. Frozen ground beef can be stored up to three months with little loss of quality. Date the packages that you place in your freezer so you may keep track of the freezer storage time.

Watch your supermarkets for good buys on ground beef. That is a good time to buy a supply. If you are preparing freezer packages for a family of one or two, you may wish to break the package and the meat into patties or smaller portions so that you will not have to thaw too large a quantity.

An excellent tip if you like hamburger patties is to make your patties, place on a cookie sheet using layers of waxed paper between the patties, freeze them and then remove from the cookie sheet and place into a plastic freezer bag. Then you can pull out the number of patties you need without them sticking together.

Have a good day and a good week!

More people are finding they have less money to spend on clothes. Shopping for used or recycled clothing can add to the wardrobe without upsetting the family budget.

Used clothing can usually be found at garage sales, rummage sales and second-hand clothing shops, and it often represents a real bargain.

Shopping these places, rather than a discount store that might carry seconds or damaged items, could give the consumer better quality for less money.

The best bargains are the basics, such as jackets, skirts and shirtwaist dresses, that will be stylish five years from how as they were five years ago. Avoid trendy fashions that may cost less today but be out of fashion tomorrow.

After deciding what items would most enhance the wardrobe, jot down all body measurements so they can be compared with items that are appealing. Sometimes it isn't possible to try on used clothing, so accurate measurements are a necessity.

If the chosen items fit, examine them carefully for quality and signs of excessive wear. Check to make sure seams are straight and strong, and that zippers work easily. Watch for collars, cuffs, elbows and hems that are frayed on used clothing, and check to see whether colors have faded.

Try to figure out why the previous owner got rid of a particular peice of clothing. Check closely for spots or grease stains. It may be that someone has already tried to remove the spot and it won't come out. However, it's possible to cover such a spot with a pocket, or another detail, without detracting from the overall look of the garment.

Consider any work that may be needed to bring the used item up to your personal standards. If it will need alteration, or a new zipper, it may not be a good buy after all. Never buy anything that is going to need more time or skill than you have to give.

Some simple changes that may be worth the time are tapering bell-bottom slacks for the straight-leg look, or shortening long skirts to a new fashion length. However, it's difficult to lengthen skirts. Always check the hem for a worn spot that may be exposed when the skirt is lengthened. The old hem can also leave a tell-tale line when the hem is lowered.

Children's clothes are probably the best bargains when shopping for used clothing.

AA meets every month

Alcoholics Anonymous is a fellowship of men and women who share their experience, strength and hope with each other that they may solve their common problem and help others to recover from alcoholism.

The only requirement for membership is a desire to stop drinking. There are no dues or fees for AA membership; we are self-supporting through our own contributions. AA is not allied with any sect, denomination, politics, organization or institution; does not wish to engage in any controversy, neither endorses nor opposes any causes. Our primary purpose is to stay sober and help other alcoholics to achieve sobriety.

Each Tuesday night at 8 p.m. both the AA and Al-Anon groups meet at St. Anne's Church on Oakleigh Ave. in Appomattox. Any one having a problem with alcohol is welcome to come and learn how recovering alcoholics received help through this program. Al-Anon invites anyone who has a spouse, parent, or other loved one suffering with alcoholism to join its fellowship. Alcoholism is now recognized as a disease and this program has a proven record of success.

On the first Tuesday night of each month, there is an "open meeting" and any interested persons are invited to attend.

Those who have received help through this fellowship have a beautiful motto; "I am responsible. When anyone, anywhere, reaches out for help, I want the hand of AA always to be there. And for that: I am responsible."

Raiders win 2 more contests

The Raider varsity basketball team won a tough 65-58 overtime decision against Altavista Tuesday, then picked up their ninth district win of the season, 58-49 against Brookville Friday night.

Altavista took a 19-12 first-quarter lead against the Raiders in Tuesday's game, but the Appomattox squad chipped away at that lead in the second quarter, and the score stood at 33-28, Altavista, at the end of the first half.

The teams played even in the third quarter, with each squad tallying 16 points. In the fourth quarter, the Raiders began to creep up on Altavista, and Ricky Miller's basket with 12 seconds to play tied the game for the Raiders in regulation time.

The Raiders outscored Altavista, 10-5, with the help of five-for-six freethrow shooting by Rick Caldwell and Appomattox walked away with the victory, 63-58.

Rick Caldwell was the leading scorer for the Raiders, with 20 points. Gary Ferguson and Ricky Miller also scored in double figures for Appomatox, with 14 and 10 points respectively. Others scoring for the Raiders were Jeff Miller (nine points), Derwin Harvey (six points) and Bobby Carter, (four points).

Four Altavista players scored in double figures against Appomattox. They were Heath Clark (16 points), Frankie Poindexter (11 points) and Frankie West and Dwayne Poindexter with 10 points each.

The Raiders scored 32 field goals and went 17 for 34 from the freethrow line against Altavista.

Friday's game against Brookville was a less difficult contest for the Raiders, who built a 10-7 lead in the first quarter and amassed a 25-18 lead by halftime.

With liberal substitutions in the second half, the Raiders retained their lead in the third quarter and extended that lead to 58-49 by the game's end.

Ricky Miller was high scorer for the Raiders, with 11 points during the game. Jeff Miller also scored in double figures for Appomattox and Mike Jackson scored 10 points off the bench for the Raiders. Others scoring included Rick Caldwell (nine points), Gary Ferguson (eight points) and Bobby Carter (five points), Derwin Harvey (four points), and Todd Scruggs (one point.)

Harry Scott was high scorer for the game and for the Bees, with 19 points on the night.

The Raiders scored 25 times from the floor, and hit eight of 19 field goals against Brookville. Brookville scored 20 field goals and hit nine of 14 freethrows against the Raiders.

The Raiders were scheduled to play Liberty at home Tuesday after the Times-Virginian deadline. Friday night, the team will travel to Buckingham, and next Tuesday, the Raiders will end their regular season at home against Rustburg.

The Seminole District basketball tournament is scheduled for Feb. 22 through Feb. 26 at Rustburg High School. Tournament details will be featured in next week's Times-Virginian.

Ferguson, Miller set to play for U.Va

Appomattox County High School seniors Kevin Ferguson and Jeff Miller announced early this week that they would sign letters of intent to play football at the University of Virginia.

The athletes, who were stars on the 1982 Seminole District champion Raider football team, were scheduled to sign on Wednesday (Feb. 9) after the Times-Virginian deadline. Wednesday was college football's national signing day.

Ferguson, six-foot-two and 195 pounds, was considered one of the best high school quarterbacks in Virginia during the 1982 season.

His season's statistics, which included 88 completed passes for more than 1,400 yards, made him a popular target among major-college recruiters in recent weeks. He was named to the All State, All Region and All District teams this year.

Miller, who anchored one end of the tough Raider defensive line this season, is six-feet-four and weighs 218 pounds.

He made 52 tackles, and had 56 assists for the Raiders this year. Miller runs a 4.9-second 40-yard sprint.

Miller was named to the first team All District and All Region squads this season.
